Bonna Jean McCormack passed away peacefully in her home surrounded by her loved ones on Feb. 24, 2015, in Montague, at the young age of 55.

She enjoyed spending time outdoors gardening and landscaping in the company of her father.

Bonna McCormack is survived by her father, Richard McCormack of Montague; daughters, Jennifer (Juan) Cota, Sheila (Marcus) Robinson, Bridget (Doug) Andrews and Michelle (Jason) Charlesworth; sisters, Debra Cook and Roxann Avalos; and numerous nieces and nephews.

“ Over the years through our lives we grew up together learning from each other and loving each other everyday. We shared our mom with many others and we know she built great relations with many. We will miss her every day and learn to live with the emptiness of losing our mom. The person that we could always go to for anything without worry that she would stop loving us for who we were, who we were becoming, or who we would be. Feeling the absence of the mother's unconditional love for me as the daughter is what I will miss the most. Learning to love her for who she was and who I am because of her will never be forgotten. I love you mom always and forevermore.
