“ It's going to be 5 long years I have not touched you heard you or seen that wonderful smile of yours . Every day I awake to another without you. It's not easy . I have your brother and your sister but not you . I'm blessed to have them truely. It's also another day I don't have you . I'm absolutely torn between love and hate . It's a wonderful feeling to feel blessed and a absolute horrifying feeling of heart ache along with a emptiness that is so dark it's endless. I have countless reasons to live everyday yet to the fullest yet without you it's hard to go on . Never should a parent loose a child . I ask Why all the time . Why were you taken that night. Your dads intentions were all in the right place . He wanted to make you happy . He wanted you to know you were equeally loved. It was suppose to be a father son night to look back on and you tell what dad had done for you . I never got to see your face light up when he gave you that car . I never got to see your again . They say most accidents happen close to home but wow I can walk from my front door to the crash sight in less than a minute. I more minute you would have been home safe and life would have gone on for you. It's hard to not question why when you had a nice little family and good things happening . I hear you telling me stop mom just stop . As your mother I will not ever stop. I need to know why. Where is the lesson to be learned ? Tell me or show me and I will stop. That should to only take a minute. I miss you Gregory. I just really miss you. Mom

Gregory, You are one of a kind. There will never be another Greg. Our losing you has made me have feeling i never new existed. I have watched each of us fall apart then come back strong. I speak of you day in and day out. I wish you were here to the point i wish i was there. Some times your sister will yell out little saying of yours and we all smile big and shed happy tears. You my child were one of the bravest men i know. You stood your ground and put plenty people in check, when it was needed. You kept the peace with in the family. Now your sister is the peace maker . I never seen that coming . Every day i will miss you more and more. until i see you again . LOVE 4-Ever , Mom
