“ So it has been a little over six years since you have been gone. Things are still unbalanced without you here. I am now 15 years, going on to 16. I was 9 when your death happened. I still remember everything that happened that day. I know you are not physically here, but that you will always been in my heart and around some place. You were my best friend and always will. No one can replace you. I love you grandma and always will. They say it gets easier, but not really. I mean maybe a little. Baby steps. Anyways, I know you are watching over me and I miss you everyday.
