“Corky was my "BEST" friend for the past 50 + years. I still miss being able to stop by and visit him. Many of those visits were meant to be only a short while but ultimately ended up being the whole afternoon as we talked about music and many other varied subjects. A few times we took off in his van and checked out some of the trailhead areas in the Marble Mountain Wilderness, or checked out Greenhorn Park. One time we cruised over to the Mt. Shasta ski area and saw a band we both used to like called Lydia Pense & Cold Blood. While not as good as they used to be, it was still good to see them.

Corky, before he was paralyzed, was becoming a very accomplished drummer, definitely a cut above joe drummer down the block. A couple of local bands he played in were The Pineapple Streetcar with his brother David on guitar and another band a little later called Home Cookin' with Steve Beck on Guitar & vocals and David Crawford on rhythm guitar and bass guitar. Jazz Rock was his his main forte when it came to music, bands such as Blood, Sweat & Tears, Tower of Power and the like. But then he also loved the Moody Blues, Gordon Lightfoot and many others.

Anyway, I will most likely have an empty void in my heart until I too pass from this earth. Corky was my one true friend.

“Corky was a good man. I developed a friendship and "brotherhood" with him while he was a commentator with KSYC. He was instrumental in promoting numerous public safety themes and messages during his career. He helped save lives and he made a difference in other peoples' lives. We had many long conversations at the office and I loved Corky because he was so compassionate, insightful, intelligent, thorough, and he truly cared about law enforcement, the community, and he loved people. Corky was also courageous because he worked hard and helped others often times when he himself was in pain due to his medical challenges. He helped a lot of kids stay away from unsavory habits such as impaired driving and he made a difference as a radio commentator and person in life. I am honored to call Corky my friend, associate, and he was like a brother in many ways. Corky is gone but he will live on in the hearts and minds of those fortunate enough to know him and I am certain that he has improved the heavenly realm of his fellow "good and faithful servants."

“Corky re-enforced my loves for music and literature...how I will always cherish the years we new each other, and the times we spent together. He is finally STANDING along side his Mom and Dad, and waiting for the rest of us to catch up! God bless those of us he left behind, and know that we will be seeing that angelic smile again! “ Knew Corky since the Hawke's owned & ran KSYC. He was always a positive guy & he had plenty of reasons to be anything but that. Did a radio interview this past summer, the last time I saw him, for our Veterans Commission & he was still Mr. Positive & expressing his love for life. Great guy dedicated to his job & The Lord. RIP & God Bless.
